

Lighter Than Air

Lighter Than Air by Henry Melton

Winner of the Eleanor Cameron Golden Duck Award.

It could be the best prank in the history of Munising High School's unofficial Prank Day. Working for a next door neighbor inventor had left Jon Kish with unlimited quantities of lighter-than-air foam, perfect for building...say, a full-sized flying saucer! High school honor demanded it. Plus with the family stress of his mother's surgery, he needed something to keep his mind occupied. But little sister Cherry had her own schemes in play, and events more serious than high school pranks or Mother's cancer were about to focus the world's attention on this little northern town.

Small Towns, Big Ideas is a collection of stand alone YA titles where high school aged heroes of the here and now are confronted with classic science fiction themes. Targeted to ages 12 and up, these titles are receiving high ratings from all ages and have proved popular even with people who "don't read that science fiction stuff".

Henry Melton, author of the Darrell Award-winning Emperor Dad, is frequently on the road, taking inspiration from the small towns and scenic vistas he finds everywhere. Having written short science fiction for the magazines and anthologies for years, and making an impact with classics such as his gaming story Catacomb, he is now concentrating on YA science fiction novels.
